Investment in real estate involves a degree of risk and investors should not invest any funds unless they can afford to take the risk of losing their investment.
For taking an investment decision, investors must rely on their own examination of the property including the risks involved.

With ticket sizes getting larger by the day, the common investor is increasingly getting crowded out of the commercial property market. Lower investible funds also means gravitating towards under construction and early stage projects where payments are spread-out over time. This in turn leads to the common risks of real estate investing - rogue developers, unending construction delays, lack of proper approvals and a clear title.
